S Subjective Interviewing

Standardized Patient

I've been feeling not so well... always anxious, and sometimes I hear some strange sounds.

That sounds really frightening... Are they like someone whispering in your ear, or coming from outside?

O Objective Examination

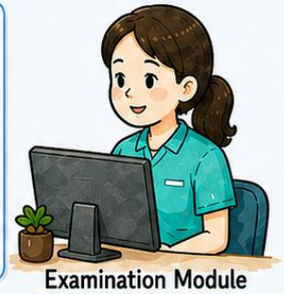

[Physical Exam, CT Scan, EEG]

Physical Exam: no obvious abnormality

CT Scan: mild frontal lobe atrophy

EEG: no obvious abnormality

Examination Module

A Diagnostic Assessment

Clinical-note Generation

Persistent anxiety... intermittent strange sounds... possible auditory hallucinations. CT: mild frontal lobe atrophy.

Diagnostic Reasoning

Possible psychotic-spectrum disorder... consider anxiety-related symptoms and other secondary causes.

P Treatment Planning

I recommend medication, psychotherapy, regular follow-up, safety monitoring, and family support...

Understood... I'll follow the plan and return for follow-up.
